GENERAL NEWS.

Washington News.

DAKOTA FOR A STATE.

WASHINGTON, December 21.—Delegate Ben of Dakota, is seriously laboring to create a timent among the members of the house in or of his bill to divide the Territory of kota and to admit the southern part into the on as a state. The bill has been referred to committee on territories, which as yet, has en no action regarding it. Mr. Bennett poses to divide the present territory on the y-sixth parallel thus throwing about 80,000 es into the new state and 70,000 into the itory. The population of the new state ld be about 100,000, and that of the terri- about 36,000.

NO QUORUM.

The ways and means and appropriation com- ittees could not obtain a quorum to day, and Pacific railroad committee have adjourned r for the holidays.

THE SENATE'S MORNING HOUR.

The morning hour in the senate was occu- d in the discussion of private claim bills. e consideration was resumed of a bill to dis- ute the 28 million fund among the state, an cution session followed.

CONCERNING THE ELECTORAL VOTE.

n the house this morning a motion to dis- se with the morning hour failed, and the aker called the committee reports. Wood ved the house go into committee on the ding bill for an hour's debate. Pending [illegible] the following [illegible] two houses [illegible] in the chamber of the house of representa s on the second Wednesday in February, , at 12 o'clock, and the president of the te shall be the presiding officer; that two ons shall be appointed tellers on the part he senate and two on the part of the se, to make lists of such votes as shall be lared; that the result shall be delivered to president of the senate, who shall announce state vote and persons elected to the houses mbled as aforesaid, which announcement ether with the list of votes, shall be entered the journals of the two houses.

he speaker decided the resolution present- a question of privilege, whereupon Fer- do Wood raised a question of considera- .

ob nson thought that congress would enjoy holidays better after doing its constitutional ies, and he desired to speak on the question consideration.

he speaker ruled it not proper, but Robin- , notwithstanding, amid cries of order from democrats, said this was the resolution un- which the presidents were counted in up to coln. Answering Townsend, he said he ired to antagonize every bill until his con- utional duty was done.

he house, by vote, yeas 87, nays 66, refused consider Robinson's resolution. A strict y vote, the greenbackers, except Ladd, ed with the republicans.

FUNDING BILL.

he house then went into committee on the ding bill, and voted down all attempts of ed to limit the debate. There was exciting ussion on the bill on the part of Weaver, nd and Mills; who said they would oppose passage by every parliamentary means.

RIOTING REPRESENTATIVES.

he disgraceful scene in the house of repre- atives this evening is the absorbing topic of n talk to night, and conjecture is rife as to it will be its consequence to morrow. It is ed on all hands that the two principals in most unseemly affair must be subjected to severe discipline of public reprimand by speaker of the house, and compelled to logize for their grossly unparliamentary lan and conduc on penalty of expulsion in refusal. The excitement in the hall progress of the altercation, and for s after its termination was intense; almost beyond description. When Sparks roated out "You are a scoundrel and a villain," in response to Weaver's epithet of "Liar," Weaver rapidly walked toward him, stripping off his coat as he proceeded, and Sparks, after clutching a chair for a moment, as if to raise it for a weapon, commenced to take off his coat also, and moved towards his approaching adversary. A number of their respective friends hastened to seize and hold them back but Jones, of Texas, greenback sympathizer with Weaver, had, meanwhile, jumped over his desk and exclaimed, "If there is going to be a fight I'm in it." Miller, of Texas, was observed to plunge his hand into his pocket as if to draw a pistol. The members gathered hastily to the point from all parts of the house, and amid cries of "Order! order!" "Sergeant-at-arms!" and all sorts of undistinguishable utterances, the confusion momentarily increased and it actually looked as if a free fight was imminent. Speaker Randall, very properly disregarding the fact that the house was in a committee of the whole, and that no motion to rise had yet been made hastened to the chair displaced the mild mannered chairman who was ineffectually trying to quell the tumult and sternly pounding with his gavel commanded orders and directed the sergeant at-arms to enforce it. This command proved effectual and the parliamentary forms of coming out of committee of the whole were then promptly gone through with and the house meeting adjourned till noon to-morrow. It is proper to add that the sympathy of the house and the current of popular feeling are mainly with Weaver as against Sparks for the latter manifestly provoked the violent issue and urged Weaver into an outburst very unnecessarily.

HOW THE ROW BEGAN.

The discussion of the funding bill in the house to-day raised what a sailor would call a spanking breeze. Indeed, before the gale subsided it looked as though some literal spanking might ensue. The bill was taken up and discussed through all its varying places with commendable decency and decorum but after a while the "pure cussedness," as an eastern member observed, of the delegates found vent and a disgraceful scene ensued. Strange to say the representative with the peaceful name of Bland was the man to throw the first apple of discord. He said that a statement of Weaver's was not true. Weaver said he was another, but Bland refused to yield the floor and continued his charges against the worthy Weaver.

Weaver replied to Bland and challenged him to quote one word that he, Weaver, had said in the last campaign in favor of the republican party, until he could do so he should shut up. (Laughter). He had in that campaign arraigned the republican party; and he arraigned it to day. He repudiated the idea of having received sympathy from the democratic party during the campaign. He said the only evidence he had of it was in the shape of a forged letter published in the New York Star, and which he believed was in the same hand writing as the Morey letter (laughter).

Bland asked Weaver about his reported interview during the campaign with Jay Hubbell, chairman of congressional republican committee. Weaver denied that any such interview had taken place and charged [illegible] book of study to D. D. Lum who he said [illegible] but to both republican and democratic parties and both were cheated when they bought him [Laughter]. He did not charge inconsistency on the democratic party itself but on its leaders, on men who ran with the hounds and held with the horse. These were men whom he desired to hold up to public condemnation as being unworthy to lead the opposition to the republican party which sought to fasten on the country the British system of perpetual debt.

Sparks got the floor and alluded to a circumstance that occurred during the interruptions between Weaver, Bland and others in which Weaver had used an offensive term to him, that he was crazy. He went on in good natured manner to excuse the offensive remark as arising from a misunderstanding on Weaver's part of what he, Sparks, had said to call it out. Weaver replied in the same tone of pleasantry and good humor declining to take offense at what Sparks had said and intending that no one could venture to insult him intentionally by ascribing falsehood to him without feeling the force of his Weaver's right arm. (Laughter and uproar.) Sparks, on the latter's hearty remark, changed his tone from one of pleasantry to one of anger and said: "I spurn with contempt the reach of his arm. The reach of his arm would affect me as little as it affected the last presidential election."

Weaver, still in a jocular tone, said: "Well, that was sufficient. Does not the gentleman see that he ought never to open his mouth at all when he is excited. He spurns the reach of my arm. He can do so. I would not hurt a hair of his head. [Laughter]. His apology was ample and I accept it, but I caution him against further use of the term falsehood or lie. That in Kentucky is regarded, I believe, as equal to a liar or a blow, and even if I was not as large as a mouse, I would assail any man who would apply such a term to me offensively. The gentleman has alluded to my weight, but I warn him that my fighting weight is 180 pounds." [Shouts of laughter.]

Sparks said: "Does the gentleman say that I used the word falsehood?"

Weaver: "So I understood."

Sparks: "Oh, no; your's was certainly the first offensive word."

We ver—Still good humoredly, "We are all right now. Sparks, you understand me, I said that you were stating what was not true and that you were winning in the qualities of a gentleman in your failure to remedy the mistake in your statement and confusion. That was all that there was of it. But it was developed at the last election that you wanted, those qualities."—Weaver continued now though angered and excited, "I denounce the gentleman personally as a liar on the floor of this house."

Mr. Sparks, equally excited, "You are a scoundrel and a villain."

Weaver thereupon amid great uproar left the floor where he was standing and advanced toward Sparks who in his turn moved toward Weaver, but both were immediately surrounded by the members who prevented them from getting to close quarters and made them put on their coats which each was in the act of taking off. As they advanced into the area, of course the greatest confusion and disorder prevailed on the floor and in the galleries. But in the midst of it the speaker took the chair and called upon the sergeant-at-arms to do his duty. Just then, however, there was nothing particular to be done by that official as the combatants had been removed by their respective friends and there was no danger of their assaulting each other.

After the disorder had subsided the committee rose and the house adjourned.

THAT EVERLASTING MCGARRAHAN CLAIM.

Representative Caldwell, of Kentucky, today submitted to the house on behalf of the private land claims committee an adverse report on the bill authorizing the court of claims to ascertain and determine the title to Rancho Panoche Grande, commonly known as the McGarrahan claim. The committee set forth that the McGarrahan claim has been before various departments of the government for twenty one years and then proceed to say that without discussing the original merits of McGarrahan's title they are of the opinion that the action contemplated by the bill should not be taken up by congress. They base this conclusion on the ground that the whole powers of congress are by legislation. The provisions of the bill are judicial in as much as it proposes to repeal repeated decisions of the supreme court settling the right and title of various parties to this tract of land. The report says there should be some end to litigation and the decisions of the highest court of the country deciding as to the rights of parties litigant should be respected by the legislative department. If the decision of the supreme court were erroneous and McGarrahan's title was originally valid his only remedy now is by a direct act of congress conferring his title to so much of said lands as have not been legally disposed of by the government and the payment to him in money or other land of an amount equal to so much of the same as the government has parted with to innocent purchasers. The committee, in conclusion, recommend that the bill don't pass, but that it be laid on the table.

Myers, of Indiana, submitted a minority report signed by himself, which it is argued that there should be a reopening and readjudication as a matter of simple justice. The McGarrahan bill and both reports were placed on the calendar for future action.

Bound For Oklahoma.

CALDWELL, Kansas, December 21. The weather is very cold and the wind severe. The settlers remain in camp and say they will not return home till they go to Oklahoma. They claim two hundred wagons ready to join them. They are receiving supplies and say they will start in to the territority and let the soldiers shoot them down. They are on the war path hunting the man that said they are pitiable looking or were showing signs of weakening.

Financial Affairs.

NEW YORK, December 21.—The Graphic says Messrs Belmont, Seligman and one of the firm of Drexel, Morgan & Co., have recently been to Washington, and have had several important business interviews with Secretary Sherman. It is now announced that the interest checks on 1880 will be mailed to-morrow, and the secretary says that between the 22d inst. and the 10th of January he expects to disburse seventy-one million dollars, mainly consisting of payments on 1880's and interest, those of the interest 1881's pensions, and about million of interest on four per cent.

Panama Canal

NEW YORK, December 21.—The Times' editorial on the second canal prospects states that the name of incorporators of the Nicaragua project give promise of financial support and vigorous action and there are assurances that the necessary capital is already pledged. One thing is tolerably certain, if the Nicaragua canal is built it will be by American capital which is to be hoped too. It will be in all respects a legitimate commercial enterprise, free from all suspicion of intrigue, political or financial, and all necessity for such devices as heavy advance to the projectors out of the subscriptions of shareholders, special founder's shares and payment of interest on the capital during construction.

Mining Exchange Complications.

NEW YORK, December 21.—The Times says the recent election in the Mining Trust Co. has caused considerable dissatisfaction among members of the American Mining Exchange, who were promised by the old board of trustees a representation of three members in the board in anticipation of the proposed consolidation of that exchange with the New York Exchange. There is a warm talk of asking the appointment of a receiver of the Trust company, and a meeting was called for yesterday afternoon with a view of taking definite action. During the day E. T. Lawrence, the new vice-president of the Trust company, visited the exchange and had a private conference with the leaders in the movement, in the course of which he discouraged any hasty steps saying that the new Trust company had the interest of the Exchange at heart, and intended to do all in their power to aid it.—He represented the Trust company to be in a sound condition with $140,000 in the treasury.

A Bark in Distress.

BOSTON, December 21. Captain Richard Murphy of the schooner D. J. Adams, reports that 16 miles east of Chatham he was boarded by the Captain of the barque Fearless forty days from Belle Hasha, Ladrone, bound to New York, which lost two sails, bulwarks, stave, foretop gallant mast gone and was leaking badly. The crew had been living on salt herring eight days. Captain Murphy furnished eight days provisions and parted company.

Killed on the Rail.

NEW YORK, December 21.—As the Washington express train of the Reading railroad passed Bristol, Pa., this morning two late it ran into a number of passengers about to enter a train bound for Philadelphia. Three, probably four, were fatally injured.

Kid Glove Verdict.

NEW YORK, December 21. The suit of the government against Julius B King, importer of kid gloves, in progress in the United States district court for the past six weeks, ended today. The suit was brought to recover penalties aggregating $620,000, for passing eighty-four cases of kid gloves through the custom house on alleged fraudulent invoice. This amount the jury handed in the following verdict: We find a general verdict for the defendant and we cannot find any invoices that state less than the actual value.

Moon-Eyed Lepers.

SAN FRANCISCO, December 21. On the steamer Bilgio, for Hong Kong via Yokahama, fourteen Chinese lepers were shipped by the supervisor. Secrecy was observed in preparing for their departure for fear of writs of habeas corpus being obtained by their friends. Each one was provided with a small sum of money for his necessity on reaching Hong Kong. Chinese consul Bee has telegraphed to the Chinese authorities and they will be taken direct from the steamer to the leper hospital Canton. It is believed all in the city are included in this shipment. The lepers presented a hideous appearance and their comrades on board the steamer refuted to go near them.

Holiday Proclamation!

Colorado Springs, Dec. 5, 1880.

GENTLEMEN AND LADIES,

We take this method of informing our patrons and the public generally that we are now prepared to display the finest line of holiday gifts ever brought to Colorado Springs. Especial pains have been taken in the selection of our Jewelry and we sell nothing but what we will warrant to be first-class in every respect. Please remember that Christmas comes but once a year and your sisters and your cousins and your aunts have good reason to suppose that you will contribute a present and thereby promote everlasting friendship. What you want is something that attracts the eye and gladdens the heart, and what can better answer this purpose than a handsome watch, diamond ring or set of jewelry. If you wish to please old folks get a handsone silver water pitcher or an ornamental mantel clock. All that we ask is that you call and examine our stock for we have a thousand and one dainty things which cannot fail to please. Thanking all for the patronage heretofore extended, and repspectfully asking a continuance of the same.

Yours very respectfully,

Weaver, after his quarrel with Sparks, it likely to be less a democrat than ever.

If Weaver and Sparks were both expelled it would give some members of the lower house a good example. It is time they had it.

The Leadville Democrat makes an earnest plea for non-partisanship. Would the Democrat have made the same plea, if Hancock had been elected?

The Chronicle says that the democrats taught us "to the victors belong the spoils," and that it is willing to stick to it. Our contemporary is rash in accepting democratic doctrine. We prefer to learn from other teachers.

The exports of the products of the unprotected class of American laborers are as follows:

Bread and breadstuffs	288,036,835
Provisions	127,043,242
Cotton unmanufactured	211,535,905
Total	$626,615,928

The rumor is rife that Jay Gould is endeavoring to gain possession of the New York associated press He is said now to own the Express, World and Tribune and only needs to own one more paper to control the associated press. This one paper he is now negotiating for. It is to be hoped that he will not be successful as the newspaper readers will prefer not to look at everything through Jay Gould's spectacles.

The Philadelphia Press has just written an article on "Hayes and the civil service" which shows the usual amount of ignorance of Hayes policy. The article says: "But when he met this evil with his famous order prohibiting them from any participation in political campaigns and conventions, he denied them their indefeasible right as citizens, and failed to reach the abuse at all. It would keep General Hartranft or General Woodford out of a convention or off the stump, but would not prevent a custom house officer from manipulating the primaries." The order alluded to specially states that it does not prohibit any office holder from giving his views either orally or in writing after the nominations are made.

The official returns for the assessment of the State of Colorado have now been received. It appears that El Paso county returns 250,434 acres of land, or more than any other county. Pueblo is next and returns 231,199 acres. In merchandise El Paso leads Arapahoe by $140,000 Lake and Pueblo counties alone have more. In town and city lots El Paso stands third, Lake and Arapahoe, having more. In cattle our county stands sixth, while in sheep it leads all counties. The county that ranks next to El Paso is Elbert. In moneys and credits strange to say El Paso county leads all other counties, even Arapahoe and Lake This shows the injustice of the returns In bank and other shares Pueblo leads and El Paso stands second. In the total valuation El Paso county stands fourth. The total valuation is $73,776,100 or over $14,000,000 more than that returned last year

No little injustice has been done to Mr. Hayes recently by the criticisms made regarding his economy since he has been in the white house The Chicago Tribune gives the following interesting history of Mr Hayes' finances

"When a pressure was made upon Mr. Hayes five years ago to make the race for governor in his state he was at first very positive in his refusal to be a candidate. The reason for his disinclination to reenter public life at that time was due to the conviction that it was his first duty to attend to his own private affairs. He and his uncle had engaged in certain real estate transactions, and the depreciation in the value of property after the panic had seriously embarrassed him. This embarrassment was increased by the death of his uncle, who bequeathed to Mr. Hayes the entire burden of their joint indebtedness, and in addition thereto the duty of paying off a large number of cash bequests, amounting in all to about $65,000. This was a hard load to carry. Nevertheless Mr. Hayes finally yielded to the importunities of the party managers in Ohio, and consented to run for governor upon the representation that he was the only man at that critical time with whom the republicans could confidently hope to carry the State. He accepted the nomination at some personal sacrifice, and was elected. The brilliancy and importance of this triumph prepared the way for his nomination and election as President of the United States. His private affairs were still neglected, and it was evident that he would have but little time to devote to them during the ensuing four years. It was this outlook which prompted him to fund his indebtedness, and he made a loan of $100,000 upon terms that would relieve him from annoyance during his term of office. He entered upon a position to which a salary of $50,000 a year is attached, and during a term of nearly four years he has paid off about $75,000 of his personal indebtedness. This represents the sum total of his savings, and during the same period the White House accounts are said to show an expenditure of about $30,000 more out of the president's private purse than was paid out as a rule from the salaries of his predecessors.

"This is a showing of which the president has no reason to be ashamed, and in which the American people may properly feel considerable pride. A saving of $75,000 out of a total income of $200,000, in order to meet private obligations which had been increased by the demands of public life and party service, is an accomplishment that is much more deserving of praise than censure."

Dr. Johnson's Wife

Lord Macaulay writes: "Many people had been surprised to see a man of his genius and learning stooping to every drudgery and denying himself almost every comfort for the purpose of supplying a silly affected old woman with superfluities which she accepted with but little gratitude." But is the picture that Macaulay draws correct? Has he not himself laid on the color thickly and added censure, perhaps there was a lady censure enough? What are the authorities to which he has had access? None of Johnson's biographers had ever seen the lady. All the descriptions there are that we have of her are second hand, except indeed a few passages in which Johnson himself has described her. What is known of her however is chiefly from the anecdotes that Johnson told about her and from the accounts given of her to the various biographers by her daughter Miss Porter, by Garrick, Hector, Hawkesworth, blind Miss Williams, Mrs Desmoulins, and old Mr Levett. She belonged to an old county family. In the register of her birth her father is entered esquire at a time too when this title was not lightly given. Johnson, on her tombstone, describes her as "Antiqua Jarvisorum gente orta." Her family had once possessed nearly the whole lordship of Great Peatling (about 2000 acres) in Leicestershire. She was born in February, 1689. She had married a mercer at Birmingham named Porter. When Johnson made her acquaintance her husband was still living. He had an opportunity, therefore, of studying her character at a time when he could never have dreamed of marrying her. Not, in all likelihood, was his judgment about women so untrained as Macaulay says. Likely though he "had seldom or never been in the same room with a woman of real fashion." We may, in passing, raise a doubt whether the son of a country tradesman, who had inherited from his father just £20, and who had to make his way in life, would have been guided in his choice of a wife by the sight even of half a score of women of fashion. However, he had, as we know, from his earliest years always met with "a kind reception in the best families at Lichfield." Among his friends he reckoned his godfather, Dr. Swinfen, who is described as being a gentleman of landed property, Mr Levett, another gentleman of fortune, Capt. Garrick, the father of the great actor, Mr Howard, a proctor in the ecclesiastical court; and Mr. Walmesley, the registrar. Mr. Walmesley's father had been chancellor of the diocese and member for the city. "In most of these families," writes Boswell, "he was in the company of ladies, particularly at Mr Walmesley's, whose wife and sisters-in-law, daughters of a baronet, were remarkable for good breeding." Johnson was not likely ever in life to have to do with the Queensberrys and Lepels. It mattered little to him, therefore, what might be their airs and graces. Our provincial airs and graces—the airs and graces, that is to say, which as much became ladies who spent their whole life in the country, as courtly airs and graces became the ladies of St. James' were surely not unknown to him. But it may be urged we are making the case still worse. If Johnson were not half blind; if he had mixed with ladies of birth and breeding, how great must be the infatuation have been which led him to marry a tawdry, painted grandmother! We must first ask that it shall be settled at what age a woman who has two grandchildren is properly called a grandmother. Mrs. Johnson was 46 at the date of her second marriage. She was born in February, 1689 and was married in July, 1735. Her case is certainly somewhat hard. She was but a year beyond the age of the duchess of Cleveland, when that famous beauty is described by Macaulay as "no longer young, but still retaining some traces of that superb and voluptuous loveliness which 20 years before overcame the hearts of all men." Does the widow of a duke, we may fairly ask, become a grandmother at the age of 46 as well as the widow of a mother? Johnson himself was on his marriage day two months short of 26. The difference in age was certainly great enough, but surely not so great as to justify Macaulay's rhetoric. Neither is it true, we believe, that she had children as old as himself. There are only two children of whom anything certain seems to be known. Her daughter Lucy was six years younger than Johnson. "She reverenced him," writes Boswell, "and he had a parental tenderness for her." Lucy had a brother who became a captain in the royal navy. He was, we believe, more than two years her junior and, therefore, eight years younger than Johnson.—The Cornhill Magazine.

The Rothschild Family

The Rothschilds have been attracting no little attention to themselves here in Paris by the announcement of the extension of their act of partnership, which expired September 30 of this year to 1905. The Paris branch of the famous family is quite large. The dowager Baroness Rothschild who lives in the family mansion in the Rue Lafitte, had five children. Baron Alphonse, who is at this time the head of the family, Baron Solomon, who died a long time ago, Baron Gustave, Baron Edmund, and the Baroness Nathaniel Rothschild. The venerable dowager is a veritable fountain of charity. She gives away hundreds of thousands of francs every year. In summer she lives in a splendid country house at Boulogne, where apartments for each one of her sons and daughters are kept constantly in order. Baron and Baroness Alphonse Rothschild live in the old mansion in the Rue Saint Florentin, where Talleyrand once resided. They are gay and extremely fond of society, and are seen everywhere in the mode, the Baroness is one of the most accomplished equestriennes who frequent the Bois de Boulogne. Her husband is an enthusiastic patron of the turf. He has stables at Beaumont and at Chantilly, and lavishes millions on them. Solomon Rothschild was a delicate-minded man, fond of conversation, books pictures and society. His widow has a daughter who will, it is said, be the richest heiress in the Paris family. Baron Gustav is the only one who has married outside the family. One of the sons of the late Nathaniel Rothschild has just purchased the splendid mansion of Count ..., in the Avenue de Friedland, and ..., named Arthur, spends his life in ... books. It is said that no one of ... in France except the Duke d'Aumale possesses such estimable treasures of rare editions and ... as his loving ... this young Rothschild. One of the Jideraries of ... derives ... in Paris of Tephen ... family ... Baron Adolphe Rothschild of Naples, who has closed out his business and retired with the serenity of conscience promoted by the knowledge of the possession of a fortune of one hundred and eighty millions of francs. He has been seen ... in the ... carriage which is one of the peculiarities of the house. He is a great collector and will spend hundreds of thousands of francs upon any trifle which he happens to consider that he must have. There is but one Catholic in the family, and that is the young Duchess of Grammont who it will be remembered was the daughter of Baron Rothschild of Frankfort-on-the-Main, one of the richest members of the group.—... Journal.

An Heroic Sailor

Frederick Jerome, an Englishman and at present a boatman of San Francisco, has won an enviable reputation for bravery in the saving of human life. He has always followed the sea, ... and has improved every opportunity to prove his courage ... humanity in distress. In 1846 Jerome was a sailor on the ship Henry Clay. While en route to New York with a large number of passengers she was driven during a severe gale, on the coast off Barnegat. The surf was simply appalling, breaking over the ship with terrific force and effectually preventing the life boats from rendering aid. The weather was terribly cold every drop of spray freezing as it struck the deck. Men, women and children were huddled together expecting each moment to be their last. Jerome, who was a powerful swimmer, volunteered to carry a line from the wreck to the shore. With anxious eyes the passengers watched the efforts of the brave sailor. Slowly the coil of lead-line uncoiled, until at last he reached the shore, where a hundred helping hands dragged him from the surf. He was badly bruised and cut from contact with the jagged rocks and the line had cut deep into his shoulders. A stout hawser was hauled on board a life car rigged and the entire crew were rescued. Beyond the satisfaction of having accomplished a noble and daring deed, Jerome derived no benefit from his prowess. In 1848 he was still a sailor, before the mast on the emigrant ship New World. She left Liverpool in company with their complement of passengers. When in the Irish channel, off Holyhead, the Ocean Monarch was discovered to be on fire. The New World immediately went to the rescue. The sea was alive with people struggling for life. Jerome, too impatient to await the lowering of a boat, sprang over the rail into the water, and alone and unaided saved twelve women and children from a watery grave. He desisted from his heroic work only when nearly drowned through exhaustion. Over two hundred souls were lost by this disaster. Queen Victoria sent Jerome £50, with a complimentary letter, through Lord John Russell. The mayor of Liverpool sent the thanks of the city council, while the Shipwreck and Humane society, of Liverpool, presented him a gold medal and a letter of thanks. The common council of New York passed resolutions complimenting Jerome for his daring and voted him the freedom of the city in addition to a gold snuff box. The Massachusetts Humane society, of Boston, also thanked him and presented their elegant gold medal. The English ship Wiscasset, with a cargo of wheat, while outward bound from San Francisco, went ashore. In the face of a gale of wind and a heavy sea making a clean breach over the ship, Jerome went to the rescue, and through his skill and indomitable courage, succeeded in landing the entire crew, consisting of thirty persons. Other instances could be related where he has risked life and limb in behalf of his fellow man, but the above achievements rank as the more notable incidents of his remarkable career.

B. W. STEELE,
Manager of the GAZETTE.

ABE ROBERTS,
Proprietor of Mountaineer.

The Denver and Rio Grande pay car visited the city yesterday on its monthly rounds.

Mr. Frank P. Lombard informs us that he has been appointed by the city council to superintend the laying of the new water pipes.

There will be a special communication of El Paso County Lodge No. 13, F. & A. M. this evening. Work will be in the first degree.

Messrs. J. L. Marston & Co. will attend to the duties of the gas superintendent during the absence of Mr. J. H. Drinkwater in Chicago.

A gentleman in this city received a postal card from Joe Barker yesterday. The card would indicate that Joe is the liveliest dead man on the Pacific slope.

Mr. F. A. Weston, the architect, has moved his office from Tejon street to the north side of Pike's Peak avenue between Nevada avenue and Tejon street.

According to a recent inventory taken there are 160,000 tickets in the various cases at the depot ticket office upon which an average valuation of $50 apiece is placed.

South Tejon street in the vicinity of the People's bank was the scene yesterday of one of the most brutal and disgraceful dog fights that has ever been permitted on our streets. It lasted nearly half an hour and drew a crowd of nearly one hundred men who stood and watched the disgraceful performance. No efforts were made to put a stop to it either by officers or any of the spectators present and the brutes were even urged on by many. The officers were not in the vicinity at the time as their duties called them elsewhere. Had they been the owners of the dogs would have been arrested for disturbing the peace.

Our list of transfers shows a large business doing. Following is the summary:

Sales of city lots	$ 40,740
" " Monument lots	625
" " Country lands	7.225
Total	$48,590

Quite a number of government patents have also been put on record, and location certificates for mining claims on Bear Creek, and near Colorado City, are commencing to roll in on our county recorder. Want of space forbids our naming them at length.

Personal.

Mr. Joe Kenyon came up from Pueblo yesterday afternoon.

Messrs. J. H Barlow, E. E. Hooker and E R. Stiles were among the departures for Denver yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Charles Woodring left on the morning train yesterday for St. Joseph, Mo., where he will spend the holidays.

Mr. Billy Curtis returned from the Gunnison extension of the Denver and Rio Grande yesterday. He will remain in the city a few days and then go east on business connected with the road.

THE DEAF MUTE INSTITUTE

Visited Yesterday by Our Representatives-Elect

The Hon Matt France, commissioner of the state institute for deaf-mutes, extended an invitation yesterday to the representatives-elect of El Paso county in the state legislature to pay a visit to the institute. Senator C. E. Stubbs and Representatives Barker and Foster accepted the invitation yesterday and under the guidance of Mr. France were conducted to the building where the party were received by Superintendent J. R. Kennedy, the matron Mrs. Kennedy, and Prof. Kinney, principal of the institute.

After spending a few minutes in social enjoyment, the party were shown into the schools and the method of instruction explained and illustrated to them. The entire building was then inspected, and the recent improvements pointed out. The introduction of city water has proved a great convenience, and the laundry has been fitted up in a manner to facilitate rapidity and thoroughness of work. The lads in attendence upon the institute have been furnished iron bedsteads, and the kitchen supplied with an excellent range. The new wing which was added to the building, during the present year has increased the convenience of the building and improved its appearance greatly, but it is apparent that another enlargement is desirable, and it is very probable that the legislature this winter will be asked to take some action in the matter.

Messrs. Stubbs, Foster and Barker expressed themselves as greatly pleased with the appearance of affairs at the institute. They spoke in high terms of the neatness with which everything is kept, and the evident thoroughness of the work of instruction that is going on. The superintendent, Mr. J. R. Kennedy, is evidently the right man in the right place, and the work of the matron, Mrs. Kennedy, is above criticism. Prof. Kinney is doing excellent service in the position which he assumed last fall, and his efforts are ably seconded by his assistants.

The visit paid to the Deaf-Mute Institute by our representatives yesterday was not only a pleasant one, but will doubtless bear good fruit in the shape of intelligent legislation for the wants of this institution. The people of Colorado Springs and of El Paso county are deeply interested in its success, but this is also true of the people of the entire state.

A Clever Capture by the City Officers.

We stated in a recent issue that the residence of Mrs. Thomas, on Pike's Peak avenue, had been entered by burglars, and jewelry and clothing of considerable value stolen therefrom. The theft occurred on Saturday night, and, although the officers at first were thwarted in their efforts to find the guilty person, they now have the criminal under lock and key at the city jail. The first thing done was to secure a description as near as possible of the property stolen, after which the officers searched all the pawn shops and jewelry stores to see if any of it had been sold or offered for sale. Their efforts in this direction resulted in no new developments in the case. It was at first suspicioned that a servant girl recently in the employ of Mrs. Thomas had stolen the property, but an investigation of her trunk convinced the officers that she was an innocent party. The girl, nevertheless, gave Officer Beall some information that afterward proved to be true. She stated that while walking on Pike's Peak avenue Saturday night, she saw a woman come from Mrs. Thomas house and walk hurriedly across the street to Peck & Farrer's meat market. The description given by the girl would answer to that of Mrs. Errickson, the woman who some months ago gained considerable notoriety. On Tuesday afternoon a lady entered Mr. Allen's jewelry store, and, producing a locket and chain, asked Mr. Allen the value of it. Mr. Allen, who had been given a description of the stolen property, at once recognized it from the letters, "O. K. T." engraved on the back of the locket. Mr. Allen informed the lady that the chain and locket were stolen goods, and that he would be compelled to hold it according to directions given by City Marshal Beall. The lady seemed much surprised; and stated that the chain and locket had been offered to her for $9 00 by Mrs. Errickson, and her object in bringing it to him was to ascertain whether it was worth that price. The officers were at once notified of the discovery made, and Marshal Beall and Officer Clement proceeded at once to Mrs. Errickson's room above Peck & Farrar's meat market, armed with a warrant for her arrest. A thorough search of her room disclosed every article that had been stolen from Mrs. Thomas'. Mrs. Errickson was arraigned before Justice Bentley yesterday morning charged with larceny and bound over in the sum of $500 to appear at the next term of the district court.

We are pleased to note the success of the fair recently held by the ladies of the Sewing Society of Grace Episcopal church. About $150 were cleared, with goods to the value of $50 remaining on hand. These latter all new and attractive articles, suitable for the holiday season—have been exposed for sale at the millinery establishment of Miss Montgomery, on Pike's Peak avenue, where all who have not yet completed their Christmas purchases will do well to call.

MOTHER GOOSE.

Echoes from the Familiar Songs of Childhood.

The entertainment, for the benefit of the Presbyterian church extension fund, given last evening in Court House Hall, which has been anxiously awaited by the amusement loving portion of our people, proved a complete success. The programme, which was a varied one, had something in it which suited the taste of all. The entertainment was given in strict accord with the following

PROGRAMME

PART I.

1. Overture ... Orchestra
2. Piano Duet, Overture to Semiramide ... Miss King and Mr Pearson
3. Song, Canna. ... Mrs. Wright
4. Piano Solo, Fantaise Brilliante I Puritani ... Mrs Nichols
5. Song, Auld Robin Gray ... Miss Frost
6. Zither Solo, Selectiong from Il Trovatore ... Prof. Geo R Kroning

PART II.

NONSENSE EVENING WITH MOTHER GOOSE.

1. Ding Dong Bell.
2. Little Miss Muffet.
3. Bo Peep and Little Boy Blue.
4. Pretty Maid
5. The Bachelor—Buying a Wife
6. Jack and Jill.

PART III.

PROCESSION.

MOTHER GOOSE IN THE BOSOM OF HER FAMILY.

AULD LANG SYNE.

The first part, it will be perceived, was made up of various selections from artistic music, in which no less than three famous operas found representatives, Semiramide, I Puritani and Il Trovatore. The piano duet, by Miss King and Mr. Pearson, was one of the most pleasing numbers, to us, of the evening. The execution was faultless, and the tuneful music of Rossini is always acceptable to those who are not devotees of the music of the future.

Mrs. Wright secured her usual success last evening. Her singing is always agreeable, and it never fails to secure for her an enthusiastic greeting from the audience.

Mrs. Nichols at once secured the favor of those present, last evening, by her pleasing presence, and by the artistic method of her playing. Her rendition of a selection from I Puritani was received with enthusiastic applause.

Miss Frost is a great favorite with those who are fond of singing and last evening rendered with excellent effect the famillar ballad of Auld Robin Gray. She was persistently redemanded and sang about the miller of Dee whose favorite expression was "I care for nobody, if nobody cares for me."

Prof. Geo. R. Kroning gave a zither solo, selections from Il Trovatore, which drew forth a storm of applause and an encore was demanded.

As for the second part, that's where the fun began. There is little use in our attempting to describe what was done. There was, in the first place, good singing, and, in addition, fine pantomime, handsome dresses, beautiful young ladies, homely young men, and, indeed, such a mingling of sense and nonsense, wit and wisdom, fun and fancy, that any description which we should attempt would fall far short of the reality. The entertainment was a great success, the hall was crowded to its fullest extent, and every-body spent a pleasant evening.

Two Pictures.

We dropped into the studio of Mr. H. M. S. Cox yesterday afternoon and were shown some of that artist's landscape work. Mr. Cox is well and favorably known to the people of this city as a very superior portrait painter, and has already filled a large number of orders in a most acceptable manner. We were pleased to find in the landscape work of Mr. Cox many of the best characteristics of the romantic school. There were two sketches of scenery near this city, which especially charmed us. One was a view in Engleman's canon, and the other a bit of rugged scenery just off the Ute pass. The view on Ruxton's creek, in Engleman's canon, was only a first sketch, but it was delightful in its suggestiveness, and one could see in it the promise of great beauty. The view near the pass was more finished in detail and amply repaid extended study. Both pictures are works of art, and, although not yet elaborated, show what can be suggested, as well as fully described by the skilful brush of the artist.

The Colorado College examinations close to day, with public exercises, from a quarter before nine until twelve. The rhetorial exercises will takes place to-morrow evening at seven o'clock, in the new College hall.

TO THE PUBLIC.

In the GAZETTE's issue of Dec. 5th, appears an article, "Reply to Chase's Card," wherein the writer seeks to impress upon the reader the superior advantages he possesses as agent of the Phœnix nursery for supplying nursery products of fine quality and undoubted purity. The Phœnix nursery certainly ought with its 600 acres of 24,000 trees per acre or 14 400,000 trees to be able to meet the demands for stock including what Agent Finley might sell, but such does not seem to be the case, as I happen to know that the proprietor of this same 600 acre nursery has frequently purchased several car loads of trees from Geneva and Rochester nurserymen, and had same shipped to Bloomington, and on one occasion at least the Phœnix man went on to New York and purchased a large lot of culls trees that would have been consigned to the brush heap but for the timely arrival of this man with a small amount of money with which to buy a great number of trees. I am inclined to think the public will agree with me that R. G. Chase & Co. would be quite as likely to deliver trees true to name as the agent of a nursery that is obliged to send hundreds of miles eastward for a portion of its trees with which to fill his orders, and as for quality the trees will show for themselves. I may add that no nurseryman of Geneva, having in view the welfare of his customers, would think of growing over 15 000 trees per acre as they deem it of infinite importance that each tree should have an abundance of light and air in order to secure firm growth combined with stockiness. To our customers and the public generally I will say that we propose to continue supplying trees, etc., to such as may need, and our aim, as heretofore, will be to bring on none but good first class stock which we guarantee true to name.
